My autograph movie video song

If you're finally ready to mix things up and listen to anything other than - albeit brilliantly - moana soundtrack on an endless loop, then you need to turn your attention to the French-Canadian animated film Leap!. The film was released under the name Ballerina in its original international run, but the song in Leap! trailer reveals why the new title fits perfectly. Hold On of Extreme Music provides the soundtrack to America's first look at this sweet story of two orphans chasing their dreams in 1880s France, and once you hear the song, you'll instantly become obsessed. The two characters at the center of the story are Félicie and Victor, who flee the orphanage and went to Paris. When Félicie is there, Félicie assumes a new identity to join a ballet company, while Victor lands a job assisting in the construction of the Eiffel Tower. Unlike the other girls in the company, Félicie has no formal training, and must rely on her natural abilities - along with the help of a talented cleaning woman with a secret past - to earn her place in the upcoming performance of The Nutcracker. In short, it sounds adorable and inspiring, much like the uplifting Hold On. The pop anthem is a beautiful reminder that good things come to those who don't give up. I can't imagine a more appropriate song for a character with resilience by Félicie. Hold On is far from the only song you will hit replay on when Leap! the audio track has been released. The film also features original music by Demi Lovato, Sia and Carly Rae Jepsen. Given the ballet theme of history, you can expect the new music to be total inspirational fuel across the board. Apart from its sure to be amazing soundtrack, Leap! also has an incredible voicecast. Elle Fanning plays Félicie, Nat Wolf voices Victor, Jepsen is on board as cleaning lady, Odette, and Dance Moms favorite Maddie Ziegler voices Félicie's top rival. You're buying your tickets already, aren't you? Leap! already made a splash internationally, and now the film seems to be ready to take the United States by storm as well. It's really unlike most animated features - Félicie and Victor are far from royalty, and they decided to succeed in life's passions with little more than determination and raw talent. Add to the amazing setting and you have the recipe for a hit animated movie with nary a talking animal in sight. You can catch Leap! in theaters on April 21st. Picture: Walt Disney Animation Studios; Walt Disney Pictures One of the many reasons people love Disney is for their catchy songs that often have a message, and now we all know disney outperforms every other company when it comes to the songs in their movies. These songs often top the charts, and both adults and children sing catchy songs. They are helped by award-winning producers, writers and celebrities to make music that people will listen to years after the film was released. Many of their songs have critically acclaimed, and many have won awards at both the Golden Globes and Academy Awards. Some of these hits include How Far I'll Go, Let It Go, A Whole New World, Colors of the Wind, Reflections, Circle of Life and Part of Your World. Once your videos are listed in the iTunes Store, anyone interested can subscribe and automatically download new videos every time you publish them. If you've worked hard to create some original content and you want to sell it through iTunes, you're in luck. iTunes accepts feature-length original film and documentaries that were originally released either in theaters or directly to video. They also accept higher quality short films. Basically, if it would look great in a theater they would take it. There are some movies that Apple won't take. The iTunes Store does not accept adult content, how-to videos, user-generated content (think YouTube), and other video types that are not considered to be movies or documentaries. Movies must also be submitted in the language of the area you are applying to distribute it in, or you can add subtitles from that territory. If you've created a concert video, they can be sent to the Music section of the iTunes Store. To get yours in there, you'll need to fill out Apple's music program. So there you have it. Submit or sell your videos in iTunes. You should get the best results if you want to examine content aggregators, which take a lot of the guesswork out of the process. These aggregators are edred experts at delivering content to iTunes, and they know what needs to be done and how to do it. For a price, they can format and deliver your content to Apple, exactly according to Apple's specifications. The bulk of the independent films found on iTunes were provided by one of Apple's aggregator partners. If you decide to go it alone, you need to complete the iTunes movie program. Who runs the world? How about an attack by 50Ft Woman-style Beyoncé? The singer/women's active wear designer/world dominator is just one of many music artists to have their songs turned into grindhouse movie posters. MusiXploitation is a series of posters for movies that exist only in the hearts of rabid fans. In the late 1990s, Master P would release full-length narrative films with the same titles as his album, which were kind of fictional precursors to Lemonade with some seriously nervous dialogue. This new series is a glimpse of the world where that practice caught on with the entire music industry. Created by Paris-based art director David Redon, the series features blaxploitation-style posters for songs and albums by Amy Winehouse, 2Pac and Jay-Z. (Previously, Redon had mashed up musicians with vintage ads.) Some are thematically appropriate, like Frank Ocean's galactic, creepy Pyramids, and others would no doubt make their namesake so very upset, as The Miseducation of Lauryn Hill transformed into a bikini bank heist caper. Like the recent Quentin Tarantino book covers featured on Co.Create, some of the entries are tainted by almost bad photoshop. Those who hit the mark, though, like Tyler the creator's horror core Yonkers, hit it hard. Take a look at more posters in the slides above. [via Fubiz] Fubiz]
